You, Rain, and your mother Esperenza all stand on the hill, watching the Cimarron herd. You watch as the horses in the herd all lie down in exhaustion and hunger. The used-to-be plain was desert now, with only a few blades of grass left. You need to make a decision.....

* Do you go to find greener pastures => 2

* Or do you stay and live off the few blades => 3

You round the herd up, ready for evacuation. Groaning, the herd follows your guidance. You are suddenly filled with nervousness. These horses are in your hooves; any wrong move and all of you are doomed. Suddenly, out of nowhere, you hear running water. The herd does nothing but keep moving. Do you:

* Head towards the sound => 4

* Stay with the herd => 5

You feel your strength being slowly drained from you. You lie down, ready to die.....

* Restart => 1

Putting Rain in charge of the herd, you go towards the sound. After walking for awhile, you realize that all you heard was just your mind playing tricks on you.

The sun beats down on your back. Rain leans on you for support. A few horses have dropped to the ground, never to rise again. Food is scarce due to desert conditons, but then you see a miracle: a patch of grass, nearly 3 feet in diameter. Your mouth waters at the sight, but then you think of your herd. Do you:

* Eat the grass; you're starving! => 6

* Give the grass to your herd; you can go for a few more days. => 7

* Skip the grass; then you and your herd will be even on food. => 8

* Give the grass to Rain and Esperenza; they deserve it! => 9

* Ignore the grass; continue on. => 10

You quickly gobble down the grass. Your jealous herd gangs up on you. (Let's not mention the next part)

You show your herd the grass, which they quickly gobble down. Luckily for you, the grasslands are only a little while away. Looks like you'll get plenty of food now!

8

Leading your herd away from the grass, you keep them from seeing the grass. Luckily, the grasslands are straight ahead!

You quietly tell Rain and Esperenza about the grass, which they quickly start to eat. Unfortunately, the herd spots you. Let's just say the result wasn't pretty.
